A bit about yourself

I was born and raised in East London and have spent most of my adult life living in North London. I moved to St Albans in the last few years with my husband. I have been a teacher at The Collett School for 13 years and have worked in both the Lower and Upper School Departments. During my time at The Collett School, I have seen amazing improvements thanks to the tireless work put in by the amazing staff and students every day.

I love developing pupil's understanding of the world around them. I have a passion for diversity within our curriculum, making it inclusive for all and enabling pupils to see the world from different perspectives. I believe that our pupils should be presented with many different opportunities to develop their skills and their understanding of the world.

Outside of school, I enjoy spending time with my family, including my pets. I enjoy participating in fitness classes and love visiting new places.

Being part of the governing body will allow me to work with others to continue to build and develop the school's strengths and allows us to work together within the wider community to support our pupils to become the best they can be.
